YOUNG BRADFORD BANDITS GIVEN HEARING--CONFESSED OF SEVERAL ROBBERIES

QUESTIONED BY SHERIFF ANNIS OF LITTLE VALLEY AND CHIEF OF POLICE FELLOWS OF SALAMANCA.

Boys Who Robbed Carey's Store, Were Taken to Smethport to Await Trial in December.

Roy Moore and Fred Bridge, who committed robberies Monday night were arraigned before Alderman Foley yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock when information was made against them by County Detective Allison. The bandits were charged with larceny, and also with breaking entrance and burglarizing. They were remanded to the custody of the high sheriff without bail and were taken to the county jail to await trial at the December term of criminal court. The prisoners were questioned by the county detective and chief of police separately yesterday at the police station. Moore confessed to the theft of about six cars in this city and Bridge admitted that he was implicated in the theft of three cars. After having a joy ride in the stolen cars, they abandoned them, they said. Yesterday afternoon Sheriff Annis of Little Valley and Chief of Police Fellows of Salamanca came to Bradford to confer with Chief Solt in regard to the prisoners. They said that the night the Salamanca gasoline station was robbed of the revolver which was in the possession of the bandits when arrested yesterday morning, it was ransacked thoroughly, but that there was nothing in the place to steal except the firearm.

The out of town officials also wondered if the two Bradford thieves knew anything about the robberies that had been committed in New York state towns recently but no clues were secured yesterday.—Star 14.

GLASS FACTORY WILL START

Mississippi Glass Factory to Start After a Several Months Shut-Down

Fires were started in the Mississippi Glass factory on Monday, and it is planned to start operations on the week of December 10th.

Since closing down in July very extensive repairs and alterations have been made in this factory, and it is now in shape for an extended period of operation. The tank and lehrs have been enlarged so as to increase the capacity twenty-five per cent, which will mean a considerably larger production. The factory will employ in the neighborhood of 180 men, there being at present about forty men employed. When in operation the Mississippi Glass factory produces about fifty thousand feet of glass per day. At present the warehouses are practically empty of glass.

The resumption of operations in this important plant means a great deal to the prosperity of this community as the residents here, many of them owning their own homes. Workmen, business men and others are very much pleased that the plant will start running again in such a short time.—Port Allegany Rep.15

LICENSE TAGS NO GOOD AFTER MIDNIGHT DECEMBER 31st.

Harrisburg, Nov. 19.—Attention of applicants for automobile registration is called by the Department of Highways to the following facts

All operators of motor vehicles, whether owners or not must have operator's licenses. This is a provision of the act of 1923. Drivers' licenses for 1923 will be good until March 1, 1924 but 1923 license tags will not be good after midnight December 31.

Application for the separate drivers license can be made after January 1, 1924, when these blanks may be had of the Highway Department or any justice of the peace, alderman or notary public in Pennsylvania. Holders of 1923 licenses need not make an affidavit in forwarding their application for a 1924 license; hence they need pay no notarial fee. The price fixed by the legislature for a driver's license is $1.

Applicants for licenses who ask for both 1923 and 1924 licenses should send separate checks. Failure to do this will delay issuance of the 1923 license tags because the checks must be returned.

The new title law which provides that no motor vehicle may be operated in Pennsylvania without a title becomes effective Nov. 24. No motor vehicle will be given 1924 license tags unless the owner has a title for the vehicle. Every holder of a 1923 license has received a blank on which he should apply for title registration. On the reverse of this form is an application for 1924 tags. Both should be signed by the applicant.

"The most important thing to remember," said Register Eynon of the Automobile Division today, "is that while 1923 drivers' licenses are valid until March 1, 1924, no motor vehicle may be operated in Pennsylvania after December 31, unless it bears 1924 plates."

The fine for failure to register a car ranges from $50 to $1,000.

INTERESTING TALK GIVEN BY JUDGE BOUTON ON LAW ENFORCEMENT AT CHURCH

WITNESSED BY LARGE ATTENTIVE AUDIENCE

There was a very large and attentive audience out to hear Judge Bouton last Sunday night in the Baptist church when he gave us an address on Law Enforcement. It was a very timely message, as all were well pleased. In ringing tones and emphatic phrases, Judge Bouton expressed his views on "Law Enforcement". He characterized in no uncertain terms the status of him who breaks the law or aids others in breaking it. He explained the difficulty in securing legal evidence against those breaking the Volstead law and called on all loyal citizens to do their duty by giving facts in their possession in regard to infraction of the laws.

The citizens of this county have made no mistake in the selection of Judge Bouton to be their judge for the next ten years. Our Judges are the men who have the final word in enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment. When the Judge is in sympathy with the spirit and purpose of that amendment and is possessed of tact and courage as well as legal ability, he will be able to strengthen the cause of righteousness in the state and nation.

The repeaters used in the transmission of long distance telephone calls have increased the distance of voice transmission thousands of miles. It is by this device the voice is strengthened after it has become weakened by transmission. Without it all the power available on earth would not be sufficient to carry a trans-continental call.

There are about 3000 of these repeaters which greatly increase the talking range of every telephone in the Bell System.

It is estimated that the production of [illegible] transmitters this year [illegible] an increase of [illegible] more than the record.

After a most violent quarrel, the betrothed couple had decided to part. After a passionate scene, the girl tore the diamond ring from her finger and threw it on the ground at his feet.

Calmly the young fellow picked up the ring, dusted it with his handkerchief and placed it carefully in his pocket.

"So," he remarked cooly, "you have jilted me. Who has supplanted me?"

"I don't like to tell you," she answered, averting her face.

"Give me his name and address."

"No Harold, no," said the girl. "You want to kill him I know!"

"No, I don't," replied the business like Harold. "I only want to sell him the ring!"

A Train Sixty Miles Long

We're adding to the Bell System in Pennsylvania this year $6,300,000 in new land and buildings.

And in 1924 we expect that the requirements will call for nearly eight millions more.

Into these and our other buildings and along the wire-ways of the state, we're installing in 1923 new telephone equipment which would require a train sixty miles long to haul.

In starting this train, the locomotive would travel a half a mile before the caboose was in motion.

This staggering amount of new switchboards, new cable, poles, wire and thousands of other necessary materials will be added to the Bell System in this state this year. More than thirty millions of dollars will be spent to meet the telephone demand in Pennsylvania.

Never before have such enormous quantities been added in so short a time.

ONE POLICY, ONE SYSTEM, UNIVERSAL SERVICE, AND ALL DIRECTED TOWARD BETTER SERVICE

ATTACKED BY A RHINOCEROS

Doctor Shelby Tells How He Killed the Huge Beast With a Snap Shot.

On one expedition—notable in my memory because I was unaccompanied by any other white men—I spied a huge rhinoceros under a fig tree not more than a hundred yards away, writes Doctor Shelby, the big game hunter.

As soon as the boys saw that rhino they grabbed up their loads, and started on down the trail.

I decided not to kill the huge beast, and was about to turn in my tracks, when he rushed me snorting and lowering his head.

He was upon me before I was in a position to shoot, so there was nothing to do but leap nimbly to one side.

He put on the brakes and almost stopped, then continued on down the trail in the wake of the porters. They were heavily loaded and would have difficulty in escaping, so I made up my mind I would have to kill him.

As I raised my rifle he was just turning a bend 20 yards down the trail. And, scarcely taking aim, I fired.

It was a snap shot for his body. I fancied that he lurched forward. At any rate, he disappeared around the bend and I could hear him rolling over and over down the trail, while the cries of a dozen or more terror-stricken natives rent the air.

I hurried forward. Around the bend I found loads scattered everywhere. Some boys had scrambled upon large rocks. Two had jumped into a tree.

Some had jumped aside. One of these had been bowled over by the rhino, which then rolled over him, but luckily the boy had fallen between two rocks, which received the ponderous weight of the beast instead.

IRVING OFFENDED SOCIETY

But Author of "Knickerbocker's History" Became So Famous He Couldn't Be Ignored.

Society's hauteur and pride in ancestry inspired Washington Irving to write his "Knickerbocker's History," which lacerated the sensibilities of the ancestor-worshiping New Yorkers, writes Mrs. John King Van Rensselaer, in the Ladies' Home Journal. Eventually Irving's fame became so great that the social system was obliged to accept the man who had affronted it.

Society's association with Irving did little to make it think more kindly of the professional writer. He was a moody man, subject to fits of sullen depression caused, the romantic said, by the death of his betrothed, Matilda Hoffman. He never married, and her picture always stood at his bedside. It is now in the New York Historical Society.

English authors carried on the work of making their profession socially unpopular. One of the first of these to come to New York was Thomas Moore, then at the height of his fame. He was a lofty and superior little man, patronizing in his pleasant moments and at other times surprisingly rude. He snubbed New York society, which had welcomed him.

Dickens and Thackeray did nothing during their American tours to re-establish literary men in the good graces of society. They were scornful and caustic toward American institutions, even American aristocracy.

New Hardy Dwarf Lemon.

Introduction of a hardy dwarf lemon from China may result in extending the zone in which lemons can be commercially cultivated in this country, officials of the United States Department of Agriculture here believe. The promising oriental citrus fruit was sent to this country in 1908 by Frank N. Meyer, explorer for the bureau of plant industry. It was considered at that time that it might prove of value for house culture in the United States. The new lemon has, however, outgrown the earlier expectations. Tests in various parts of the country have shown that this Chinese dwarf is not only valuable as a house plant, but that it is much hardier than the commercial varieties of lemons now grown. Its fruit is also of excellent quality.—Science Service.

New Steel Tempering Process.

Through a new process of tempering steel, chopping a cold crowbar into chunks with an ax or whittling a steel rod into shavings with a pocketknife are simple performances. In fact, it is claimed by the two investigators in the state of Washington that a steel ax and pocketknives tempered by the new process have actually been made to perform these seemingly impossible acts. The process consists in the use of certain chemicals in water or oil in the tempering vessel.

Seasickness Hit by Liner Tank.

The Frahm anti-rolling tanks are claimed to have conquered seasickness by removing its cause. The newest German liner, the Albert Ballin, is equipped with these tanks. They are fitted on the sides of the vessel, just below the water line and about midships. They fill and empty automatically so that all side motion, or almost all, is checked before it begins. However, the tanks do not prevent the ship pitching in a head sea.

In the Pen.

"What is the name of that handsome prisoner?" asked the impressionable young woman.

"No. 2206, Miss," replied the guard.

"How funny! But, of course, that is not his real name."

"Oh, no, miss; that's just his pen name."—Boston Transcript.

SHOTGUN USED IN TOWN FEUD; ONE HIT.

Auto Occupant Injured by Shot from House.

Eldred, Pa., Nov. 17.—This village has been stirred up by rowdyism, which in the past week has led to the breaking of many windows by stone throwing, and last night culminated with a shotgun fusillade on five young men in an automobile, by Frank Walters of Prentissvale, whose house had been bombarded with sticks and stones. Lester Fox, 21 years old, and occupant of the car, was slightly wounded in the head by buckshot.

Warrants for the arrest of George Day, Eugene Bucker, Lester Fox and Peter Robinson, were sworn out by Walters. Day has been arrested.

Many houses in the neighborhood had been damaged and windows broken in the past few nights.

Last night many residents were sitting up late with guns waiting for a visit by the marauders. Walters was in the second floor of his house, and as the car containing the young men drew up and the stones began to fly, he threw up the window and let them have both barrels of the shotgun. The first shot scattered on the body of the car, but as the car started down the road, the second perforated the back of the top and wounded Fox. Residents are congratulating themselves that an end has been put to the marauding. It is said that the young men named have had grudges against the persons whose homes they attacked.

WOODSMAN SEES ALL WHITE DEER IN ELK COUNTY

Animal Had Nice Head of Antlers and Pink Eyes, Says Man Who Lives in Forest.

Somewhere in the woods of Elk county a prize of prizes awaits the fortunate hunter—it is a snow white buck deer, an albino, one of the rarest species of animal life.

This beautiful animal was seen by Clark Stahl, a woodsman, who was on his way from Arroyo to Kidways, yesterday. The deer cross the road directly in front of Mr. Stahl and when it stopped for a moment to look at him he had an excellent view of it. The albino was so close that the woodsman could count five points on his antlers and see its eyes, which appeared to be pink.

Mr. Stahl states that the deer came from the south and disappeared in the woods on the north side of the highway, at a point several miles east of Arroyo.

So far as known there has been but one other such animal seen in Elk county. It is a mounted specimen which was killed in the forest near St. Marys many years ago.—Star 16.

MAN WHO PEEPED IN WINDOWS FINED

M. A. Ewings who was arrested on Thursday evening charged with peeping into the windows of West Side residences, was given a hearing before Justice Bance, last evening, and was fined $10 and costs.

Several witnesses testified to having seen the man peering into the windows of the McMillan residence on Park Avenue.

Ewing was seen peering in windows on Park avenue, Wednesday night by two school boys, but he was not taken in charge until the following night when he was caught and placed in the lockup. He stated that he was guilty of the offence on the second night, but he was innocent of doing any wrong on Wednesday night. After he regained his release he was reprimanded by the police officers, who told him that they did not want to hear of any complaint against him in the future.—Kane 17.

SCHOOL BOARD DECIDES TO HIRE DENTIST

Students Will be Given Two Weeks Vacation at Christmas—Matters Pertaining to School Building Discussed.

At the regular meeting of the school board last evening it was voted to give the schools two weeks for Christmas vacation this year. The school will close Friday, December 21 and reopen Monday, January 7, 1924. Last year the vacation was ten days long.

Action was taken by the board to employ a dental hygenist for work in the schools this year. Acting on the report of Drs. McAlpin and Kerr, the board authorized the engagement of a dentist January 1, 1924. The local committee had communicated with the state board of health in regard to the matter and the state board had advised that such a supervisor could be secured at a salary of $5 per month and an estimated cost of $100 for a portable dentist set. The hygienist will impress upon pupils with the necessity for the care of the teeth and to examine and treat minor cases. The dental clinic will be continued as in the past.—Bradford, Nov. 17.

EMPORIUM MINISTER ACCIDENTALLY SHOT.

Emporium, Nov. 17.—The first accident of the hunting season reported in this vicinity occurred Tuesday afternoon when Rev. H. S. Rumsey was accidentally shot by Samuel Coleman while both men were hunting rabbits. Fifteen shot were lodged in Rev. Rumsey's knees and legs but at this writing he is resting comfortably and the wounds are healing nicely.

Mr. Coleman and Rev. Rumsey were at Moore Hill when the accident occurred and the latter had gone up a hill ahead and rounded back down again. Mr. Coleman not knowing he was near aimed at a rabbit and Rev. Rumsey sighting the game also stepped in line of the fire and got the full force of Mr. Coleman's shot. Nothing daunted he (Rumsey) in turn shot the rabbit. Then with the aid of Mr. Coleman walked three miles to his car, drove from Howards siding to Dr. Fulmer's office here, had the shot extracted and drove to his home only to collapse from the nervous strain when he got there. Rev. Rumsey is pastor of the Baptist church and is an enthusiastic fisherman and hunter.—Bradford Star, Nov. 17.

SILVER BLACK FOXES WORTH $20,000 HERE.

Were Enroute From Warren to Brockwayville where Farm Will Be Conducted.

That the raising of Silver black foxes for the fur market is no pipe dream was convincingly demonstrated last night when Frank Palmer, of Brockwayville, passed through this city with 20 foxes of that species in specially constructed crates loaded on a motor truck, the value of the animals according to people informed in the matter being approximately $20,000.

Mr. Palmer, who is a son of the late Dr. Palmer of Johnsonburg, purchased the foxes at the farm near Warren, which is devoted to the raising of high class animals not only for the fur produced but as breeding stock for fox farmers the number of whom is constantly increasing.

Mr. Palmer's farm is located miles from Brockwayville and he is entering the busines on a large scale. The load of beautiful animals attracted many admirers while the truck was parked for a time on the grounds of the Kane Summit hospital. Great care is exercised in fox farming in selecting the stock for breeding purposes, the animals must be healthy and of pure strain or there is defection in the value of the fur market, from the offspring.

It is stated as a fact by persons who have familiarized themselves with this interesting business that a pair of high grade silver-black foxes readily brings $2,000, and there were ten pairs in the cargo which Mr. Palmer took through Kane.—Kane, Nov. 14.

STONES FELL.

With a crash that awakened the people residing in the immediate vicinity five of the huge cut stones in the front of the building on Pennsylvania Avenue owned by F. A. Cogswell at Warren fell early Thursday morning. The building was remodeled some years ago and a new front put in place. At that time a corner wall of cut stone was put in place. The stones were not well set into the walk. A printing shop on the second floor of the building is thought to have caused vibration that jarred the stones loose from the mortar and allowed them to fall. The street has been roped off in front of the store and workmen are now engaged in repairing the damage done.—Kane, Nov. 17.

POSTMASTER APPOINTED.

On Monday of this week, Charles Lunden, was appointed postmaster of Mt. Jewett, by Congressman William I. Swoope, and will take charge as soon as the arrangements can be made. He was appointed because he is an efficient business man, and because a large majority of the endorsements from here were in his favor.

Postmaster E. R. Benson, whose term is now up, has proved a very capable and efficient postmaster, and while there are many who regret to learn of his release, we hope that he will still remain in our midst.—Mt. Jewett Echo, Nov. 15.

BEARS KILLED IN LAST WEEK.

Hunters Searching everywhere for Bruin. Bears Killed four Sheep. Game Protector Sent on Long Wild Goose Chase. Hunters Missing Many Good Shoots—Party at Wharton Got Two Fine Specimens.

The bear hunting season is in full swing in Potter County and many hunters from far and near are tramping the woods in the hope of taking a crack at bruin. In fact many have had the opportunity of blazing away with a high powered rifle at easy range, but in most instances the aim has proven faulty and an alibi has been immediately produced by the luckless hunters. In the vicinity of Hulls any number of hunters have had the opportunity to drop one of the big black fellows but because of inexperience buck fever, shaking of the knees or some other reason the shots have not taken effect.

A party at Burton Greeley's at Wharton bagged a bear Saturday and repeated the trick Monday. Tuesday a party at Perry Knickerbocker's at Cross Forks secured one and another a small one was reported near McCoy's. Frank Rosso, who resides two or three miles above Costello, killed a two-year old bear Saturday.

In fact there are plenty of bear in Potter county if the hunters will be a little more careful of their aim. This is evidenced by the fact that yesterday Game Protector Van Cleve was notified of the killing of four sheep by Bill Thompson, a place in Lyman Run. William Hamilton of Galeton, investigated this report yesterday and found it true and the sheep dead. In fact the experience of Mr. Hamilton would indicate that more than one bear had a part in this mid-night party and the chewing of a tree high above the ground is a pretty good indication that the leader of the marauding party is a giant among bears.

It is whispered that certain men of the county are using the bear pens erected last year to capture bears for the state. This is illegal. The bear pen is prohibited absolutely and it will not be at all surprising if a game protector visits the various pens and uses an axe upon them.

VanCleve was sent upon a wild goose chase yesterday that required about one hundred miles of travel and while the trip was a long and hard one, he could not help laughing as he told the story to an Enterprise man last evening. Tuesday evening he had a call from Cross Fork where parties were very indignant over the killing of two buck deer. The informants declared they had all the evidence to convict the guilty parties among the clues being a grocery slip with a Renovo man's name plainly written upon it. It was stated the killing had been made at or near the Osborne Place, four or five miles south of Bunnell Bridge, between Cross Fork and Oleona. By appointment yesterday morning, VanCleve met those who had made the discoveries on the scene of the supposed crime. The four portions of the two bucks were shown to the game protector who at once recognized them as the craws of grouse and opening one of them he proved his statement. The Renovoites will not be prosecuted.

Rabbits, squirrels, grouse and other small game is reported as plentiful in almost every section of the county.—Coudersport Enterprise.

THANKSGIVING

We have more to be thankful for on this Thanksgiving day than on any other anniversary in history.

On the pilgrimage of our fathers and mothers who founded our nation on the principles of political and religious freedom, let us be thankful.

For the brave men who fought for the mother country to maintain this freedom, and the brave women who made it possible for them to fight, and who left us to be thankful.

For those who kept the nation together when brother's hand was against brother and father against son, and for the great spirit of Lincoln that kept us alive throughout this trial, let us be thankful.

For the great glory of being the nation to lead the world to peace, for the great wealth that helps us in harmony with our neighbors, let us be thankful.

For the trials and tests of the past, for the efforts of the present, for the hope of the future—let us give thanks to God.

OBEY THE LAW

No true red blooded American when he really thinks seriously can take but one stand on the question of law enforcement. There is but one side to the question, whether it is in the matter of running a dance hall on Sunday, or whether it concerns the robbing of a United States mail train. The law should be obeyed.

There is nothing that is more dangerous to the future welfare of this country than laxness in the enforcement of the law. As is often said the way to get rid of law that does not meet public approval is to enforce it. Violation does not show good citizenship, for the popularity of violation will prove the people of the United States can be depended upon when a crisis is reached.

COOLIDGE PREPARING FOR CONGRESS

Congress will meet two weeks from tomorrow. It assembles with a scant Republican majority in both chambers, majorities which can be overthrown by a combination between the Republican radicals and the Democrats. A new President is in the White House. While he is pledged to carry out the Harding policies, it is in a general way that he will do so. He is not debarred from having opinions of his own. His first message, therefore, is awaited with keen interest.

The President has been at work on his message for some days. It is shrewdly guessed by the correspondents that it will include among its main features taxation, railway legislation, agricultural relief, government expenditures, immigration and international affairs. The world court may be referred to, although the belief is that this matter will not be urged subsequently. Since the immigration law terminates in a few months, subject will demand attention. There should be continued restriction so that only the needed desirables may come in.

Senator Curtis has had a recent conference with the President on the railroad situation. He is a firm believer in consolidation—the merging of lines into a few systems—but apparently he is not insistent upon immediate compulsory consolidation. He inclines, according to interviews had with him, to give the roads an opportunity to agree among themselves within a limit of several years. That is wise.

Since Secretary Mellon has outlined a scheme for general tax reduction, the President is naturally expected to support it. That will open up the whole question. As for agriculture, strong advocacy of co-operation selling is anticipated, together with an agency for disposing of American wheat abroad. The merchant marine is another topic which is likely to call for discussion. If the Shipping Board has been able to or can furnish him with a practical plan to encourage private ownership and operation.

The President has been putting in solid hours of labor ever since he took possession of the White House. He has summoned Congressmen, officials and private citizens and has had commissions investigating for him. He has been gathering, not imparting, information—weighing suggestions and listening to arguments. When he speaks, he should know what he is talking about.—Phila. Eng. 12

COOLIDGE ON NATIONAL EDUCATION WEEK

It may sound trite to say that education is the chief duty of a democracy, but it is so important that it cannot be over-emphasized. It is this fact that has caused President Coolidge to issue a proclamation urging the observance of the week beginning today as National Education Week. "Every American citizen," says the President, "is entitled to a liberal education. Without this there is no guarantee for the permanence of free institutions, no hope of perpetuating self-government. Despotism finds chief support in ignorance. Knowledge and freedom go hand in hand."

The National Education Association, the United States Bureau of Education and the American Legion are co-operating with more than a hundred other organizations for the purpose of broadening the opportunities for education. With the creation of the American Republic we were naturally committed to such a policy. Those who were worthy of being "free," says the President, "were worthy of being educated." He praises the willingness of the people to bear the burden of supporting schools and colleges, and says that while the results have been gratifying, the task is not finished, but only fairly begun.

Popular education, of course, is essential if we are to fulfill our destiny. In this connection, however, it is well to remember that in these days of keen competition many must have more than a common school education. A few generations ago only a limited number received a high school education; today it is usual and frequently calls for still higher courses.

Long before he became President Mr. Coolidge was a strong advocate of advanced education. The individual may not require the higher institutions of learning, he said on one occasion, but society does. Without them civilization as we all know it would quit from mankind in a clash. They minister to all humanity. If society lacks learning and virtue it perishes.—Phila. Eng.

ECHOES OF THE NEWS

Australian newspapers report that Tonga, in the South Pacific, is the only country in the world without a national debt. All schools are free and the government also pays the doctors, medical service being without charge to the people. The only taxes are low tariffs and about $8. a year paid by all males over 16. Tonga has 25,000 inhabitants, all kinds of sports, telephones and radio. Boy, bring the timetable. Tonga people apparently aren't paying for a lot of former wars.

Will power—or the conscious mind—controls only a fourth of the activities of the body. The other three-fourths are directed by the unconscious mind, without us ever knowing it. This is Dr. J. Mayo's theory. For instance, digestion is a body activity controlled by the unconscious mind. The so-called "Unconscious Mind" may be the Real Self. It is the part of us that dreams. It guides our emotions and much of our thinking. Every one has duo personality.

The cigar's one hundred and twenty-fifth birthday will be celebrated January 28th. It was invented in 1799 by some unknown genious in Connecticut. Before then, men smoked only pipes. The inventor didn't know what he was starting. There's no way of estimating, but tobacco smoke and nicotine have had a decided effect on civilization in the three centuries that have passed since Sir Walter Raleigh introduced tobacco in Europe from America.

JOIN THE RED CROSS.

In peace as in war the American Red Cross is the ready and effective agency of relief to suffering mankind. The Japanese earthquake proved once more this organization's facilities and worth. Through the Red Cross America was able to extend adequate aid quickly to a stricken nation.

The Red Cross now is carrying on its annual membership campaign. The opportunity offers to every Smethportian to join this mighty force for humanitarian service. Truly, there is honor gained by enrollment in its ranks. This year's appeal for membership should have an instant, general and generous response.

AMERICA LEADS WORLD IN MAKING PROVISION FOR WORLD WAR VETERANS

The nation's defenders have always had to turn to the Republican party for the greater part of the aid and relief they secured from the federal government.

The civil war veterans are well aware of this fact. Spanish war veterans, entitled to federal aid, are receiving it because of Republican legislation.

The first effective effort to take care of the ex-service men of the World war was the enactment of the Sweet bill by the Republican Congress, which combined and coordinated all agencies handling ex-service men's relief and aid into one organization known as the veterans' bureau. Since then all legislation affecting ex-service men has been enacted by Republicans.

Up to and including the appropriations for the current fiscal year, Republican Congresses have appropriated $2,282,579,000 for aid and relief of ex-service men. The amount of money the Republican Congress has appropriated each year for support of the Veterans' bureau has been greater than that appropriated for any function of the government, with the single exception of the amount appropriated to meet the interest on the public debt. It has approximated one-fifth of the total annual federal appropriations.

By virtue of Republican legislation and under Republican administration, there is now in existance a system of hospitalization for ex-service men which is pronounced by medical authorities to be the most complete and the most modern in existance in the world. There are at present 45 hospitals with a capacity of over 26,000. There are in construction in various parts of the country 20 more with a capacity of over 5,800.

Not only are these hospitals perfect in the matter of equipment, but the personnel consists of scientific, professional and medical skill, who are devoting their entire lives to the relief of those who suffered by reason of their service during the World War.

The work of rehabilitation of ex-service men has reached a degree of perfection in America, under Republican administration, that is the marvel of the world. Nearly 17000 ex-service men have completed their training and all who are able have been placed in positions. More than half of those so placed are earning more than they earned in trades or professions prior to their entering the war. Seventy-four thousand men are undergoing training.

Under this Republican administration men are not only trained to take their places again in the ranks of self-supporting citizens, but they are provided a free employment service, which cooperates with industrial and mercantile concerns to guarantee rehabilitated ex-service men an opportunity to get on their feet.

Approximately 1,000,000 disability claims have been handled by the Veterans bureau since its creation by the Republican Congress and compensation to disabled ex-service men or their dependents is now being paid out at a rate of $1,009,000 a day.

The record of the treatment of ex-service men of the World war at the hands of the Republican party is not equaled by any other country in the world.

"Mistah Dumbbell! Mistah Dumbbell!" Considerable amusement was caused in the lobby of a New Orleans hotel when a bellboy, in a loud voice, paged Mr. Dumbbell. Inquiry at the desk revealed that H. T. Dumbbell was registered from New York. The bellboy, after wearing out a dime's worth of shoe leather, confided that "they ought to be a lot of guys answer to that moniker."

When you think you have troubles, remember Mary Dermody, crippled domestic, of Laurel Hill, N. Y. She has lost $535, her life savings, which she had been twenty years accumulating with a view to obtaining admission to an old ladies home. Pin came loose. Mary's money would have been safe in a bank. But that doesn't lessen tragedy.

Anna Pavlowa, probably the world's most artistic dancer, says the unusual—that no child has "talent". For instance, Pavlowa claims that at eight years she had ambition but no talent. The talent was developed by hard work and intense study. Physical exercise especially fencing, was among the things that created ability. Ability after all, is the desire to do and the willingness to labor to learn how. Exceptions are rare. There are exceptions, though Pavlowa, speaking glibly, claims not.

THE COUNTRY EDITOR

While others sing to beat the band
In praise of warriors bold,
I gently take my pen in hand
For men of different mold;
I sing of those hard-working souls
Who labor night and day,
And all they've left is thirty cents,
When creditors they pay.

I raise my lid to all the boys
Who run the country press,
I raise my voice and make a noise
With all my might and stress
In honor of the rural scribes
Who furnish us the news
Of all the factions, clans and tribes
With wide divergent views.

They hand bouquets of fragrance rich
To all the newlyweds,
Within the hall of fame a niche
They give the thoroughbreds,
Unto the high school graduates
They give advice and praise,
And of the smiling candidates
They sing in roundelays.

And when there comes to anyone
The summons to cash in,
They tell of all the good he's done
And cover up the sin;
And if the erring one who fails
In life's exacting school,
They show that criticism pales
Beside the golden rule.

Their patron saint is good Saint Paul,
Their motto's from his pen,
As you will readily recall:
"To all things to all men."
Their path is not with roses strewn,
The world knows not their worth,
Amid the crowds they stand alone
As best upon the earth.

—James Graham, in Beaver crossing (Nebr.) Times.

WHAT SAY YOU?

You've all heard poets rave about
The joys of evening strolling,
Or hitching up the old grey mare,
And in a buggy rolling;
How great it is to ride with your girl
Go wand'ring in the gloaming
Where water dashes o'er the rocks
And falls below all foaming.

They scorn the speedy auto
Which covers ground too fast;
Complaining that the scenery
Is all too quickly passed.
Their knocks against the movie shows
Are heard both near and far;
They'd rather view old Nature's work,
Where man's not left his mar.

But with them all I disagree.
Their lofts are full of chaff,
Their primitive and olden ways
Most surely make me laugh.
The good old autos, made of tin,
I'll take to move around in;
And, when diversion do I need,
The theatre I'll be found in.

LEVIATHAN FUND IS NOT PROPAGANDA.

Southampton, Nov. 17.—A story afloat on board the Leviathan as it arrived here last night, of a secret hoard of German propaganda material surviving from the days when the vessel was the Vaterland, turned out to be nothing more or less than a bale of picture post cards of the former Kaiser and crown prince in military regalia, and a miscellaneous assortment of drygoods.

These treasurers miraculously had escaped the depredations of thousands of soldier passengers during the war, and all the engineers and workmen who spent months reconditioning the ship as a liner. In mid-ocean one of the stewards, inadvertently pressing upon one of the panels in the main saloon, was amazed when the wall flew open, revealing a secret compartment.

KNOCKS THE SPOTS

Here is an important household aid;

To remove grease spots from carpets and rugs, rub talcum powder into the spot. The powder will absorb the grease or oil. Then run the electric vacuum cleaner over the powder and the spot will disappear into the lungs of the cleaner. If the grease has become hard, run a hot electric iron over the spot after the powder has been applied. The iron will soften the grease and the vacuum cleaner will do the rest.

The Home-Feast Day

NOVEMBER has come with its festival day,
The sweetest home-feast of the year,
When the little ones mingle in frolic and play,
And share in the Thanksgiving cheer.

And let us remember that tale of the past,
Of the Pilgrims who gathered their band,
And offered up thanks for the corn when at last
It waved o'er the famishing land.

For hunger had wasted those strong, patient men
Who struggled and labored in pain,
And the blessings of plenty which gladdened them then
Gave courage and hope once again.

And the fame of their bravery never decays,
While year after year rolls away,
Since the morning that ushered in prayer and in praise
The birth of our Thanksgiving Day.

Observance of Thanksgiving

THE celebration of Thanksgiving day has a long and curious history, in which it is the province of a woman to play an inconspicuous part. The earliest aspect of the day takes us back to the chronicles of the Israelites, among whom there is mention throughout the Bible of days set apart for special thanksgiving unto the Lord. Later the custom was not uncommon in England before the Reformation, and was taken up and continued by the Protestants afterward.

Thus it was that at its inception there was no regularly appointed time for this celebration. Sometimes it would be observed once a year, sometimes twice, and then perhaps a year or two would be skipped—according as reasons for thanksgiving presented themselves or not.

Among the colonists it was customary for the president to issue a proclamation recommending that the people cease from their ordinary occupations and observe a day of thanksgiving, with proper ceremony, at some specified time, but it was usually left to the governors of the various states to determine whether there should be such a day, and when.

* * * * * * *

This irregular course and unofficial-like treatment of the observance might have continued in vogue indefinitely but for the well-directed and strenuous efforts of Mrs. Sarah J. Hale, editress of Godey's Lady Book. She realized, perhaps more forcibly than others at the time, that the celebration of Thanksgiving as then observed lacked character and impressiveness, which could be remedied only by the adoption of measures bringing the people to concerted participation on this occasion. Therefore she assumed and devoted herself to the task of writing to all the governors of the different states and territories, urging upon them the propriety of a nations Thanksgiving and suggesting the last Thursday in November as the day for such celebration. She continued to write these letters year after year, and was finally rewarded for her efforts by all the governors, excepting two, granting her request.

However, the people's response was not enthusiastic, and during the Civil war, especially in the South, the custom lagged.

Immediately after the battle of Gettysburg Mrs. Hale wrote President Lincoln, inclosing a copy of Washington's Thanksgiving proclamation, and suggesting that he also proclaim a day of national thanksgiving. The President acted upon her suggestion and issued a proclamation "for the observance of Thursday, August 16, as a day of national thanksgiving, praise and prayer."

From that time on the celebration of the day lost its local and variable character and took on the fitting dignity of a national and stable ceremony. Lincoln's successor appointed the last Thursday in November as Thanksgiving day, and the date has continued unchanged ever since.

Thanksgiving day is a legal holiday in every state, territory and possession except Utah, where it is observed, though not on the statute books.

UNSPOKEN THANKSGIVING

A sunny face is an unspoken Thanksgiving.

Thanksgiving —Then and Now

IN THESE days of rush and custle the advent of Thanksgiving serves most of all to remind us of what wondrous changes time has wrought. The Thanksgivings of our fathers and those of today are no more alike than the minuet and the fox trot, the dances that well typify the era of the present and the past. About the only thing left to us from out of the old days is the Thanksgiving turkey, and even this bird is not now held sacred and necessary for this festival.

The very mention of the word Thanksgiving brings to the mind a picture that modern conditions have turned to the wall. It is a picture of the time when life was simple in its pleasures and robust in its strength; when people were really folks; when the race and rivalry of life did not extend their office hours over the entire day. That state of things has now passed away. It has followed in the wake and the trail of the pioneers and the other figures of the American national life that was but is not.

In the old days there were tippets and mittens, things that hing in memory's closet on the same nail as the high stock, men's shawls and daguerreotypes. Gone are the marvelous tippets that went round and round the neck until a person was swathed like a mummy of ancient Egypt. Gone, too, are the mittens knit at home in colors of sunset and sunrise blue, those cozy ancestors of gloves. As for the bootjack, in these days of luxury and ready-made shoes it is as unknown as any creature of the prehistoric age.

No longer does Thanksgiving bring the real mince pie, that culinary triumph of every well-regulated household, with its wonderful fruity flavor, that cunningly combined the qualities of solidity and crispness, a pie that even if dangerous to health made a danger well worth facing and putting down. Compared with the bakery-built substitute of today the mince pie of those days was a vintage pie, as far above its modern rival as a vintage wine is above the grocery wine for cooking use. Its existence was a splendid testimonial to the physical traits of the men and women of the era in which it flourished.

Even the plum pudding, that carnival of richness, is disappearing from the stage. It is giving way to ice cream, that mollycoddle of digestion that invites to slow eating and deliberate enjoyment.

The Thanksgiving stage is now set with new scenes and new characters. There is the cabaret and terrapin, and football and the theater. There is the social function in place of the family festival; and in the evening hours the elaborate entertainment in the gilded ballroom, in place of the homely dance to the strains of the fiddle and the bow and the ministrations of the merry, squeaking fiddler. Truly, the coming of this holiday and its observance well measures the distance that the nation has gone from its life and its habits in the days when Thanksgiving day was young.

Something to Think About

BROKEN PURPOSES

THE very pleasurable ease with which many of us break our higher purposes and turn aside in feverish haste in the pursuit of some elusive object, does not argue well for our future content or prosperity.

The gray hairs that fringe our temples and the hard lines about our mouths bear intimate relationship to the pitiful job we have made in holding steadfast to a fixed course.

We humans, at least some millions of us, are fickle, impetuous and impatient, inclined upon the slightest provocation to change our minds overnight, at a sudden veer of the golden weather cock.

When we wake in the morning we are not quite sure whether we are steering our craft toward the north star or heading it for the southern cross.

But we do know that the purpose of yesterday is gone. We have a new one which appeals directly to our lofty ambition, so much so, indeed, that we draw in our chin, puff out our breast and stride briskly down the street, forgetting in our elation to acknowledge the snuffling nods and cheery good-mornings of our friends.

By night our certitude has somewhat withered before the intense heat of cogitation, and we are filled with doubt.

For years and years we have gone around and round with the compass. But on this occasion everything is different. We cannot move.

Our great project, for which we have been husbanding our strength, is hidden somewhere in the mist, our sight is defective, our hands are unsteady and there is a tug at the heart that we cannot much longer endure.

Event has succeeded event, not as we expected, but as our solicitous friends had foretold. Our old stalling habit is gone. We are discouraged, down in the depths.

The world goes on merrily. There is no tenderness in its heart. It cares not a whirling whether we sigh or sing, whether we are clothed in purple or in tatters and rags.

And some of the merriest are carrying a load in their souls, because they, too, have broken their purposes. But they refuse to yield to discouragement.

They have resolved to try again, and to keep on trying as fast as ever they fall, trusting not in themselves for sustaining strength, but in the higher power—being prodigals seeking their father's house!

Has Anyone Laughed At You Because—

By ETHEL R. PEYSER

You are called "good"?

Because you are careful of others' feelings and don't ride rough-shod over them? "Oh, come on; let your mother (or your wife) stay home for once by herself," has often been phoned to you when you have refused a party. Yet you can't go and these laughers can't understand, because they haven't the feeling that you have for others. They don't understand that you wouldn't have a good time if you went to a party knowing some one was unhappy and lonesome at home. Those who don't think of others often are left in the long run themselves. You have your way of being happy and stick to it.

SO

Your get-away here is:

It's no crime to be good if you do not realize it yourself!

Uncommon Sense

By JOHN BLAKE

BE IN CONDITION

THE best watch movement ever made would refuse to work if not kept in a strong case.

The directing mind of a battle is kept back of the firing line, away from bursting shells.

It is silly to develop your mind if you are going to leave it in a weak body.

If your brain is exposed to possible destruction by every malady that comes along, why bother about educating it?

Mind and body are equally important. One cannot prosper without the other.

There are book addicts as well as drug addicts, and neither get very far in the world.

Physical education is rightly made an important part of the curriculum of every modern college.

If you cannot go to college, at least learn to care for your health.

Take exercise; learn how and what to eat; avoid excess. If you have bad teeth, get them attended to. No intellectual treasures you can store up will last very long unless they are properly housed in a strong body.

Leaving out of the question the fact that no man can be happy when ill, keep well for the sake of your mental condition.

Stevenson, it is true, wrote great literature although an invalid. But Stevenson was a genius. And even he felt that he could have done still greater work had he been well.

Cultivate your mind and body together. The healthier you keep your body, the healthier will be your mind.

Pessimism, morbidity, self pity, all come from illness in one form or another.

You can be healthy, if you try hard enough. It means hard work sometimes, and often dull and weary work. But it is worth the trouble.

Without strength you give hostages to the enemy which later on you will be in vast trouble to redeem.

A Student at Penn State College traveling over the mountain from Lewistown to State College last week lost control of his motorcycle and jumped off. The machine went over the embankment a straight drop of 50 feet. In an effort to recover it from the dense undergrowth of brush in which it fell, a Cadillac sedan was found with 1920 license tags, and two human skeletons.

He held her hand tenderly and fondly gazed at the ring he had given her two nights ago.

"Did your friends admire it"? he asked. "Yes, and two of them recognized it."
